

Dear Sir,

I am writing to you from my care home about a problem I hope you will be able to resolve.

I have just started a Music Club for the residents here where, once a week, I will be playing music or singing songs from the past, which I hope will bring back happy memories.

Unfortunately I had a copy of a song book the Daily Mail brought out in 1975 for choirs to rejoice in the singing of nostalgic songs. I gave my copy to a lady who regularly visited care homes where she would get residents to join her group in her group for a dose of nostalgia.

I have now started a Music Group at my Care Home in Malton where, once a week, I hope to bring a little happiness through music. Is it possible that a 'spare' copy might be lying around in your archives which I might have?

Thank You,

(SID THATCHER)
